

Goodnight, Wildhaven

A Bedtime Story from the Creature Park

S. J. Tang

For every little dreamer who asks for "one more story, please."

Copyright © S. J. Tang. All rights reserved.

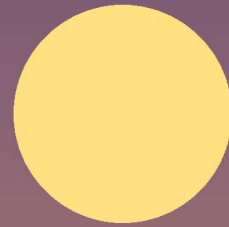

Story and illustrations created with the assistance of AI, directed by the author.

This book belongs to Welcome to Wildhaven, where the wild things sleep tight...

When the sun slips down behind the hill,
and all the busy park
grows still,
the keeper walks
from gate to den,
to say goodnight
to every friend.

Down the path
the keeper goes,
past the gate
where lamplight glows.
Boots on gravel,
soft and slow —
time to tuck in friends below.

Flufftail hops
one final lap, then curls up for a meadow nap.
"Goodnight, Flufftail,
soft and small,
the comfiest bunny
of them all."

Pebblit yawns
a stony yawn,
been rolling boulders
since the dawn.
"Goodnight, Pebblit,
sturdy friend,
even mountains rest
at day's end."

Aquaphin makes one last splash,
a silver ripple,
then a dash.

"Goodnight, Aquaphin, dive down deep,
the pond will rock you fast asleep."

Bubbletide blows
one last bubble —
pop! it lands
without any trouble.
"Goodnight, Bubbletide,
drift and gleam,
asleep upon
the silver stream."

Emberling glows
warm and low,
a tiny lantern's
sleepy glow.

"Goodnight, Emberling,
dim your light,
you'll shine again
tomorrow night."

Cinderpup has run all day,
sparks of joy
along the way.
"Goodnight, Cinderpup,
rest your feet,
tomorrow's sparks will be twice as sweet."

Mossback moves
so slow, so deep,
he's halfway into dreams already.
"Goodnight, Mossback,
mossy dome,
wherever you are,
you're always home."

Zephyrix races
one more breeze,
then folds her wings
beneath the trees.
"Goodnight, Zephyrix,
swift and free,
the wind will hum
your lullaby."

Glimmerwing sheds
sparks of light, confetti for the coming night.
"Goodnight, Glimmerwing,
gleam and glow,
you make the dark
a wonder-show."

And on the farthest,
darkest hill,
Nocturnix watches,
wise and still.
"Goodnight, Nocturnix,
count the stars,
and guard the dreams
that will be ours."

The lamps blink on,
the gates are closed,
the fountain sings,
the park's in repose.

Every habitat,
snug and tight,
hums with sleepy
creature-light.

One star, two stars, three stars, four — five above the fountain's door.

Every star's a tiny light
keeping watch on us tonight.

The moon leans down to hum a tune
the hills have known since always-June.
Hush now, hush now,
close your eyes,
the park is wrapped
in lullabies.

And what do
sleeping critters dream, tucked beneath
the moon's soft beam?
Come and peek —
but not a peep! —
at dreams inside
the park asleep.

Flufftail dreams of clover fields, and all the somersaults they yield.

Aquaphin dreams of waterfalls, of diving deep when morning calls.

Emberling dreams of firefly nights, of cocoa cups and friendly lights.

Glimmerwing dreams in purple sparks, of painting stars across the dark.

Nocturnix dreams with one eye bright — somebody must guard the night.

So close your eyes,
my sleepy friend,
the day is done,
the dreams begin.
The stars will keep the park in sight — Goodnight, Wildhaven.
Friends, goodnight.

Goodnight.

The Friends of Wildhaven

Flufftail

Pebblit

Aquaphin

Emberling

Mossback

Bubbletide

Zephyrix

Cinderpup

Glimmerwing

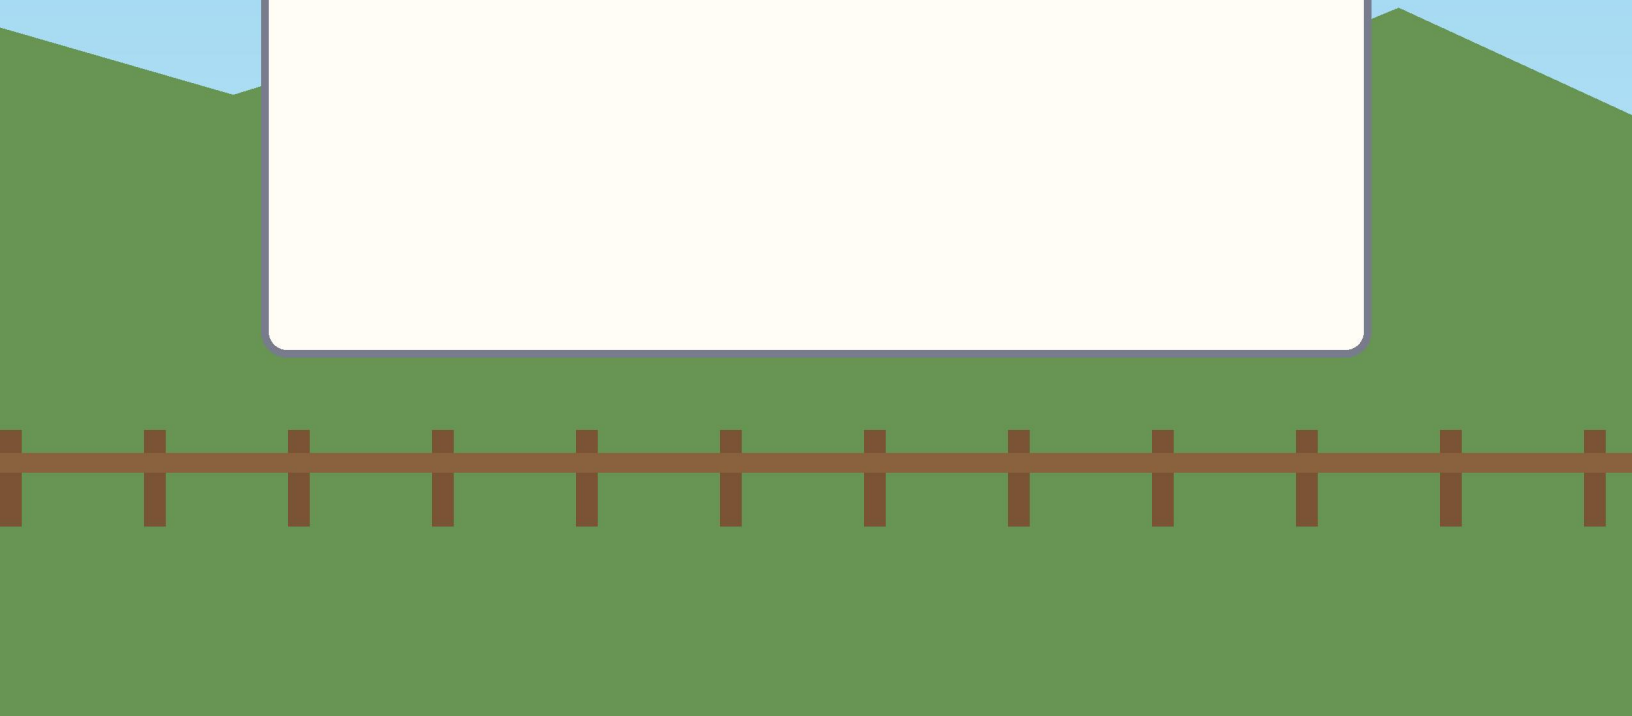

Nocturnix

My Goodnight List

- ☐ Brush my teeth
- ☐ Put on cozy pajamas
- ☐ Read one story (this one!)
- ☐ A big goodnight hug
- ☐ Close my eyes and dream

Every park needs new friends.
Draw yours here!

Can you count the Flufftails?

Wildhaven is real (sort of).

The creatures in this book live in Wildhaven: Creature Park — a cozy game you can play together with a grown-up, and in Critter Isles, where it all began.

Sweet dreams, keeper.

